

From Gibraltar to Malta the two friends had *a very rough and disagreeable voyage, the wind — a devil of a levanter, and sometimes sirocco — full in our teeth half the time, and not going, even with the steam, more than four knots an hour.' Their ship called at Algiers, and there, though they did not land, they 'observed with interest that the tricolor flag was flying,' a reminder that this was the summer of ' the three glorious days of July.'
